South Bay Police confiscate fireworks

Pyrotechnics in Pahokee...The City of Pahokee sponsored the annual Fourth of July fireworks display on the dike on Sunday evening. The city spent about $5,000 on fireworks. The show draws several thousand people from around the area each year.

Woman found beaten, bloody in street - husband charged

A Belle Glade man is in jail today after allegedly beating his pregnant wife.

Jose Genaro Barron, 25, of 1108 West Canal Street South, Lot B-2 is charged with two counts of aggravated battery after an incident that happened last Friday evening about 6:30 p.m.

Police were called to the Barron home by Maria Barron, 22, after she said her husband had beat her with his hands and fists earlier this same day.

Lt. Jack Fulenwider said officers Claude Cosby and Barbara Akin saw bruises on the right side of Mrs. Barron's face. She told them she was two months pregnant.

The officers could not find Mr. Barron to arrest him and Mrs. Barron was taken to Glades General Hospital's emergency room and treated and released.

The officers took Mrs. Barron back to her house so she could get some personal belongings and then Mrs. Barron went to a friend's home to stay until Mr. Barron could be located and arrested.

Lt. Fulenwider said Mrs. Barron went back to her house without police escort to retrieve some more personal items.

A short time later, police officers, checking on Mrs. Barron, found her beaten and bloody in the street in front of her house.

Mr. Barron has apparently been hiding inside the house waiting for her return, said Lt. Fulenwider.

Mrs. Barron had a cut on the top of her head that required nine stitches to close.

Police officers found Mr. Barron hiding under a bed inside a friend's house and arrested him. He is currently being held in the Palm Beach County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Two suspected burglars caught

Two Miami men are in the Palm Beach County Jail charged with grand theft auto, armed burglary and grand theft.

On July 1 at approximately 11 a.m. an alert citizen in Belle Glade saw two men breaking into the home of Gene Bair at 917 N.E. 30th Street.

The citizen called the police department with a description of the two suspects, and a description of their car.

Two men, Juan Calero Fiallo, 45, and Andres Jara, 19, both of Miami, were stopped by police on State Road 880. They were found to be driving a stolen car.

The car was taken a month ago from D.L. Peterson Trust in Coral Gables.

Police say the car was loaded with stolen property which came from Mr. Bair's home and also from Charles Lane of 422 S.E. Avenue A, Belle Glade.

Further investigation found that the suspects were linked to another residential burglars at the home of Carolyn Cohron of 1140 N.W. 25th Street, Belle Glade.

They were both arrested and taken to the Palm Beach County Jail under $12,000 bond.

Business owners upset with police

By BRENDA BUNTING
SUN Editor

No accidents were reported in the Glades from fireworks over the Fourth of July weekend, but several businesses in South Bay are upset when police confiscated their fireworks on Friday evening.

Four businesses, Gurley's, Swift's BP, Shop N' Save Convenience Store and Illusions Videos and Sound were raided by South Bay Police July 2.

"We seized five big plastic garbage bags of fireworks," said Chief Roy Huston.

All four businesses were found to be selling fireworks without a license.

Nick Youses, employee and cashier at Gurley's, said they lost about $700 in confiscated fireworks this year. He said the police department raided his store last year and he lost almost $5,000 in merchandise.

"The guy who sold to us this year said we could sell these and we didn't need a license," he said. "I don't understand why they couldn't just told us to take them off the shelves instead of taking them. The only thing the police department here is good about is coming and doing things like this."

Mr. Youses said he has had numerous break-ins over the past year and has lost about $100,000 in merchandise.

Four Glades residents chosen for alligator hunt scheduled to take place September 1-15. The second phase will be September 16-30.

The Commission this year reduced the number of alligators each participant may take from 15 to five. The reduced bag limit enabled the GFC to triple the number of hunters selected. Selected participants must purchase an alligator trapping license by July 15 or forfeit their permit to another applicant.

Alternates will be randomly selected and notified during the week of July 19. All selected participants, including alternates, must attend one of 11 training/orientation programs provided by the Commission from July 24 through August 10.

Like last year, permitted hunters are allowed to have up to three trapping agents to assist in the hunt, but agents are not allowed to hunt independently of the selected applicant. They also must possess a $50 non-transferable trapping agent license.

Rickey Jackson proudly returns to Glades

Rickey Jackson is living proof that through patience and determination you can accomplish what you want in life.

The Pahokee native thought he was going to be a number one draft choice coming out of Pittsburgh University in 1981.

Instead, Jackson waited as seven linebackers were chosen ahead of him in the NFL draft.

In his early years with New Orleans the team rarely won and Jackson struggled for recognition as a player.

Now after twelve pro seasons Jackson has been named to the All-Pro team and is arguably the best player in Saint's history.

Last Thursday, Jackson returned to the Glades area to attend Glades Sports Day.

Jackson brought along some of his famous friends:

Lawrence Taylor of the Giants, Nat Moore, retired receiver for the Dolphins and Glades Central Graduates Louis Oliver of the Dolphins, Jessie Hester of the Colts and Jimmy Spencer of the Saints. Gof pro Calvin Peete also attended.

The day was a huge success as 400 Glades youngsters attended the football camp and the athletes help to raise $5,600 from the golf tournament and basketball game that will go to benefit the Pahokee High School band and Glades Central's athletic department.

"If we can get one or two of these kids to make it and come back and talk to the next generation then, we will be successful," said Jackson said.

"Not just in sports, but anything."

Buster Keen honored by co-workers at South Fl. Conservancy District

To honor Melvin C. Keen, Jr., known to all as "Buster," friends and family gathered on June 4 at the Drawbridge Restaurant for his retirement dinner.

The first day of June marked Mr. Keen's 42nd year of employment with the South Florida Conservancy District.

June the 1st, 1951, at four o'clock in the morning, Buster cranked up the District's dredge and began cleaning out canals. He operated a Model 25 three quarter yard Northwest and a half yard Link Belt dredge until the early 1980's, advanced to the position of mechanic.

In 1987 he was promoted to the position of Assistant Field Superintendent.

Recognizing his years of service to the District and admiration from past and present employees of the Districts, Buster was awarded an honorarium plaque, a 12-gauge Model 1400 Winchester shotgun, and to remind him of his duties at the water control districts, a "genuine, artificial, gold-plated" rain gauge.

When asked his recollection of his first day on the job, he remarked: "I started to work a long time ago...when the moon was the size of a quarter and the stars were little bitty things."

Buster's philosophical quotes and colorful sayings will certainly be remembered by all who have worked with him.

HEADACHES

Also called sick headaches, a typical migraine attack, begins with a dull throbbing ache in one area of the head and progresses to a piercing pain. These tortuous attacks may be preceded by a change in the field of vision - a flickering before the eyes, flashes of light, or a blurring of the vision. They are sometimes accompanied by nausea or vomiting. They are seldom relieved by aspirin. Their duration is from 2 to 48 hours.

Paint it

Hi. I'm calling in reference to the Belle Glade Police Department. The building looks ridiculous and needs paint.

It makes Belle Glade look bad. Let's get it painted.

Editor's note: We asked Louis L. Lowery, Inspector of Police with the Belle Glade Police Department, to respond to this caller's concern. He said he agrees with this caller, the police station is badly in need of painting and there are plans to paint it in the very near future. Thank you for Speaking Out.

Responding to last week's Speak Out

I hope the teacher's aide who called in last week isn't working with my child.

This person seems unable to read contracts, understand budgets, or employment versus unemployment.

While I regret suffering on anyone's part, moral support from the other parent, technically, no one is a single parent.

I suggest this aide get a second job and learn to manage money instead of expecting taxpayers to pay vacation bonuses. Thank you.

Editor's note: I called the Unemployment Compensation office twice last week and asked for the manager to call me back to respond to last week's caller's questions. I have yet to hear from them.

City hiring

The following is of great concern to the citizens I have spoken to:

How is it possible, or should I say the nerve and the lack of judgement the mayor and the city manager have to hire the mayor's (Bill Bailey's) daughter to replace Mrs. Underwood?

This is an outrage and a great concern to the citizens of Belle Glade.

I think the commission should move without delay to take control of all departments, advertising all jobs. No one should be hired because of the inside edge.

This should be looked into and investigated.

Thank you kindly,

A concerned citizen.

City Manager Lourax Harrelle responds:

The City Clerk's office is such a small department, the City Clerk should be given the discretion to choose the individual who serves as her Deputy City Clerk.

A close interpersonal relationship is necessary to ensure the success of this department.

No raise

I'm a substitute teacher with the Palm Beach County School system.

The School Board did not give raises to the substitutes when everyone else got raises. I work every day and many days that regular teachers do not work and yet no raise.

I do not think it's fair that substitute teachers did not get raises along with everyone else and I would like to know why.

Fifteen more Prozac suicides during clinical trial uncovered

FDA safety reviewer reported Prozac intensifies depression

By the Citizens Commission on Human Rights signs and symptoms of depression...

The Citizens Commission on Human Rights (CCHR) recently released previously undisclosed documents, from the FDA, revealing that during the time Prozac was being tested for market approval, 15 patients succeeded in taking their own lives, six by overdoses, four by gunshots, three by hanging, and two by drowning.

In the second document released, a safety review of Prozac, done by the FDA in 1986, it was uncovered that an FDA official indicated symptoms of depression appeared to be intensified by Prozac.

The first report, entitled, "Deaths reported during or after Fluoxetine treatment," which was provided to the FDA by Eli Lilly, detailed a total of 27 deaths as of October 15, 1987.

On December 29, 1987, just two months after this report was produced, Prozac was approved for the market by the FDA.

In an additional document released by the Commission, the 1986 FDA Safety Review of Prozac, done by the FDA Safety Reviewer, he wrote:

"Certain clinical risks of mild to moderate severity did appear to be associated with the use of fluoxetine (Prozac), as determined by a review of the safety data in this NDA (New Drug Application) submission.

These potential risks include intensification of the vegetative

According to the Executive Director of CCHR, Tanya Bibeau, "There were more suicides attributed to Prozac before it reached the market than some drugs had when the FDA had them."

Recently the FDA announced that just last year they had removed an antibiotic from the market after three deaths were attributed to it. Prozac has 840 suicides associated with it, and it's still on the market.

Just two weeks ago, CCHR released documents which contained information on three Prozac overdoses, one which resulted in death, a case of manic psychosis, and an undetermined amount of seizures during clinical trials.

Prozac, a member of a new class of anti-depressants, is prescribed for people suffering from depression. The manufacturer, Eli Lilly purports that Prozac handles depression; CCHR contends that the overwhelming evidence against Prozac shows that the drug only increases the propensity of the individual to experience heightened depression, and in numerous instances, leads the person to commit suicide - a concern substantiated by the FDA Safety Review document.

Bibeau stated the Commission has been actively investigating and exposing the dangers of Prozac since Joseph Wesbecker went into the Standard Gravure plant in Louisville, Kentucky, shot 20 people, killed eight and then himself in September of 1989.

During their investigation,

Louisville, Kentucky, shot 20 people, killed eight and then himself in September of 1989.

During their investigation, the Commission found and exposed more and more instances of violent reactions to Prozac, including murders, attempted murders, and suicides.

Finally in September of 1991, the FDA held hearings into anti-depressants, where they claimed that there was no scientific evidence to show that Prozac had a "causal link to suicide".

The most common thing that we (CCHR) have heard from Eli Lilly is that "depressed people commit suicide, and the FDA approved this drug". Our response to this is quite simple; more than 840 people are dead today because of a drug they took to overcome problems they attributed to depression, the FDA approved a drug that they knew was increasing the intensification of depression symptoms.

"Our campaign is a simple one, we want to save lives. CCHR will continue to let people know that Prozac is a dangerous drug for many people who take it. We do not have millions of dollars at risk, we care only about human lives," Bibeau said.

Citizens Commission on Human Rights was established in 1969 by the Church of Scientology to investigate and expose psychiatric violations of human rights.

Dear Dr. Boltson:

After having read your articles, I feel that you give very beneficial advice. Therefore, I am bringing to your attention a very sensitive subject, interracial relationships.

I am entering into a friendship with someone who is of another race and I feel that this could lead to more than casual friendship because there is a definite physical attraction. The main problem is that both parties are married with children.

Even though we love and don't want to hurt our spouses, neither of us are completely satisfied in our present marital situations for varying reasons.

I really enjoy this person's company and attention but I am afraid of putting myself and the other person's marriages in jeopardy. I have never before considered an interracial relationship, the thought had never entered my mind until I began to get to know this certain individual.

I grew up around prejudice and my mind is continually telling me that what I am considering is morally wrong, but I can not control the feelings that I am having. I know exactly what is at stake, but I have no control over these emotions. Please advise.

Yours truly,
Signed,
Confused

Dear Confused:

Your problem is that you are trying to deal with two issues as one. It appears that mostly, you are not happy in your marriage, and you need to work on that issue before you complicate your life further by pursuing this "friendship".

You are correct in saying that you cannot control your feelings. You can, however, control your behavior. It is quite common for married people to continue to be sexually attracted to other appealing people.

I remind you, however, that in your marriage, you promised to remain committed to your spouse.

The problem is not with what you feel, but with what you do. The problems is not that you find another person to be attractive, but rather, that you are pursuing a relationship that you already know in your heart will be harmful to your marriage and your family.

If you were a single person asking about interracial relationships, I would give you a different answer. I would say that if you are lucky enough to find a partner who treats you well and whom you are compatible with; then you should not let age, race, or religion hinder your relationship if you both can overcome your own prejudices. When interracial relationships work, the couple's biggest problem will be prejudice from others.

If you were happy in your marriage and merely wanted to become friends with another person, I would say that it is nice for married people to have friends. In such a situation you and your spouse could enjoy the friendship of this other person together.

Since none of these "if" scenarios apply to you, I would advise you not to spend time with this "friend."

Although you can't control your emotions directly, if you actively pursue this friendship, then this person will occupy more of your time and more of your thoughts as well. You are setting yourself up to expect more than a friendship from this person.

First, work on improving your marriage. Try talking more with your spouse, and seek professional counseling or assistance from your pastor. If you improved your marriage relationship, you would probably find yourself less attracted to others.

You are wondering how to handle your "inter-racial friendship." You are feeling yourself and distancing yourself from what ought to be your main challenge in life: to improve the relationship between yourself and your spouse.

If you would like to anonymously inquire about issues regarding yourself or your acquaintances, you may do so by writing to Dr. Boltson. You don't have to give your name or address. Just mail all questions to:

"Fishing Kids Stay Clean" take trip

On Thursday, June 24 the Fishing Kids Stay Clean organization took another trip. This is the third deep sea fishing trip taken in the Glades area, since the program was brought to the Glades.

Mr. Don Simunek, who is the director of the program, is also seen on channel 25, doing the fishing reports.

The Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office, Pahokee and Belle Glade police departments work with the schools and Mr. Simunek, to make the program successful.

Approximately 12 students from the Glades departed the Boynton Inlet aboard the "Lucky Day" charter boat and headed for the deep waters. Approximately 20 minutes later, Captain Frank had located fish infested waters. There were numerous catches of Dolphins, Snappers and several Amberlins. Also, plenty of Bonita were caught to give these young anglers a lot of drift boat fishing practice. The "Lucky Day Mates", Jason and Tyrone, also had plenty to do by removing fish baiting hooks and untangling lines. A good time was had by all.

This program is designed to encourage kids to do well in school and earn good grades. It also promotes fishing as a family activity and the enhancement of a better quality of life and values.

Special thanks are given to Captain Frank and crew aboard the Lucky Day, Horta and Sons; distributors who provided beverages and Mr. Larry Royal; Southern Management of Burger King, who provided lunch.

Another trip will be coming soon.

Wading bird protection network being developed

The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission is developing a statewide Wading Bird Protection Network in response to significant population declines in certain wading bird populations since 1978.

The network is designed to pinpoint the needs of the most wading bird nesting sites and develop comprehensive management strategies to meet those needs, according to GFC Nongame Wildlife Biologist Mark Robson who is based in West Palm Beach.

The available data on abundance suggests an overall decline in numbers of several wading bird species," Robson said. "Comparisons between statewide surveys which took place between 1976-1978 and between 1986-1989, indicate real declines for several species, such as white ibis, wood storks and snowy egrets.

"These estimates are based on the best available statewide data," Robson said. "However, it's difficult to compare changes over that long a time and our information may be incomplete."

"Another trend indicated in the statewide surveys was the tendency of large nesting colonies to fragment into numerous small ones," Robson said. "This may be contributing to lower success during the breeding season."

"The Florida Atlas of Breeding Sites for Herons and their Allies," published in 1991, lists 14 wading bird species found in approximately 700 sites statewide. The Wading Bird Protection Network will study, protect and monitor the top 100 wading bird sites, according to Robson.

The top sites were selected using a criteria based on site longevity, numbers of birds present, numbers of species present, plus other biological factors.

GFC staff are taking a close look at each site as they develop "mini-management plans" customized to deal with each site's needs and special circumstances.

"Our goals are to determine the location and extent of foraging habitat, provide management guidelines, identify threats to the birds or the habitat and establish a protection network," Robson said.

Beginning in March, GFC nongame biologists will revisit the top 100 wading bird sites," Robson said. "The survey will be conducted on the ground and from the air using fixed-wing aircraft and helicopters. The survey will provide biologists with a current biological profile of each site."

The information assimilated for each colony site will be invaluable as commission staff develop a network of volunteers, representatives of other agencies and private conservation groups to carry out needed management and monitoring activities," Robson said.

"I don't want to kill the Wading Bird Protection Network as a cure-all," Robson said. "Many of the problems that wading birds face are very complex. The declines are the result of problems that are occurring over large geographical areas. The Everglades is a good example."

"Our efforts in this project are going to be focused on identifying and protecting individual nesting sites," Robson said. "It's an important first step, but there's a lot more work that will be needed to be accomplished before the problems are resolved."

Community United Methodist musicians attend workshop

The Fellowship of Musicians in Workshop and other Arts, at Florida Southern College in Lakeland, was held June 21-25.

There were church musicians attending from all over the state. Community United Methodist Church was well represented in both the youth and the adult divisions of the workshop.

Mary-Ann Hollinsworth and Monica Schmidt sang in the soprano section of the youth choir, which was made up of mostly high school students. They also both played in the advanced youth handbell choir, directed by Dr. Bob Burroughs of Palm Beach Atlantic College.

Dr. Alan Pote, Composer-Youth Clinician, directed the Youth Choir.

Carol Schmidt and Becky Watson sang in the adult choir which was directed by Dr. David Davidson, an outstanding clinician from Dallas, TX. While Becky was playing handbells with two handbell choirs, Carol attended workshops on various ways of using music in workshop.

A most memorable experience was the final program in Branscomb Auditorium performed by the youth and adult choirs, accompanied by organ, handbells and a brass ensemble.

Quota hunt applications are available at GFC offices

In addition to the regular nine-day and special quota hunt program that has been under way since June 1, the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission offers an assortment of unique quota hunts.

Applicants for these hunts are available from the Commission's regional offices. They must be received by the Commission's Tallahassee office July 14-30 in order to be included in the random drawing.

At the Three Lakes Management Area (WMA) in Central Florida, hunters who have mobility impairments and who require special equipment have an opportunity to enjoy outdoor recreation. In addition, the Holt Creek WMA in northeast Florida has been set aside for the exclusive use of mobility-impaired hunters. These hunts are not intended for hunters who have the Florida disabled hunting and fishing license, but rather those persons permanently confined to a wheelchair, persons who require mechanical aids to walk and persons with complete single leg amputations.

Interested sportsmen should ask for the Three Lakes and Holt Creek mobility-impaired person hunt application.

Another unique hunt the Commission offers is one established for young hunters 8-15 years old under adult supervision. Two WMAs in northeast Florida—Camp Blanding and Andrews—offer the opportunity for adults to take young hunters on a public hunting area where the number of hunters and the hunting areas are rigidly controlled to provide an optimum learning experience.

These hunts have been extremely popular and the number of applicants exceeds the number of spaces available each year. To apply, hunters should ask for the Camp Blanding and Andrews supervised youth hunt applicant.

HIPPY planned for Palm Beach County

Plans are in progress to extend HIPPY, the Home Instruction Program for Preschool Youngsters, into Palm Beach County. The Palm Beach County School Board has approved Rosenwald Elementary School in the city of South Bay as the first site in the country for the HIPPY program.

"HIPPY is an internationally successful program to prepare pre-school children from disadvantaged families with the basic skills for academic success," according to Barbara Kaplan of north Palm Beach HIPPY advisory committee.

For several months, the committee has been meeting with school board representatives, civic and community leaders, specialists in early education and representatives of funding organizations.

"We are seeking a coordinator for HIPPY and plan to have the program in place by the opening of the school year in

The coordinator will work with paraprofessionals, who go into the home weekly with learning materials and help the parent develop basic skills to prepare their children to succeed in school.

Working with four and five-year-olds, the parent utilizes teaching materials, reads to the child and develops an interest in education in both the child and the parent, who may have little formal education.

HIPPY was pioneered in Israel in the late 1960's by the National Council of Jewish Women at the Research Institute for the Innovation in Education, and spread to Europe, South America, Asia and Africa. In 1982, the Ford Foundation gave a grant the NCJW to develop the program in the United States. There are 60 programs in 17 states, including Florida.

Goodale attends HOBY seminar

Jeffrey Goodale, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Goodale of Belle Glade, represented Glades Day School at the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation (HOBY) South Florida Leadership Seminar held May 14-16 in Miami.

HOBY motivates, trains and develops future leaders, preparing them for positions in their schools and helping them to expand the talents that will serve them and society in the future. It's beginning with, inspired in 1958 by actor Hugh O'Brian, then appearing as Wyatt Earp in a popular TV western, returned from Africa after spending nine days with

Dr. Albert Schweitzer. Mr. O'Brian was so inspired by this visit that he began the Foundation the same year.

Goodale, who just completed his sophomore year, was selected by the administration at Glades Day for his potential leadership ability, cooperativeness and sensitivity to the needs of others, ability to relate to new pursuits and acquaintances and the desire to learn and share knowledge. A varsity football and tennis athlete, he represented his class on the Student Council and is a member of the National Honor Society, Gator Band and Glee Club.

He joined sophomores from all over the state of Florida to discuss America's Incentive System with prominent leaders in business, government, education, the profession and volunteer sector. The format is one featuring brief introductory segments, with an intensive question and answer session following each presentation.

"I'm really happy I got the chance to go to the seminar," said Goodale. "I met a lot of students from other schools as well as leaders in businesses and communities. They emphasized how individuals should be their own person and not follow the crowd just because everyone else does. Success comes with being strong enough to live up to your ideals and beliefs. We also learned what it takes to be a leader."

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Throop of Belle Glade, announce the engagement of their daughter, Nicole Marie Johnson to Joseph W. Perryman of Belle Glade, son of Mrs. Connie Perryman.

Nicole is also the daughter of the late Donald J. Johnson. She is a 1990 graduate of Christian Day School and is currently employed with Sizzle Hair Design. Joseph is employed with Pride of Florida.

The couple is to be married August 7 at the Community United Methodist Church in Belle Glade.

Florida panther officials move to restore gene flow

The Florida Panther Interagency Committee voted Tuesday to approve development of a new plan to restore the genetic health of Florida panthers. The plan calls for the releasing six female Texas cougars into south Florida to breed with male panthers.

The committee's technical subcommittee recommended the project, saying it reflects the latest scientific conclusions about the genetics of all cougar subspecies across North America.

"All mountain lions are of the same species, Felis concolor, and their genetic characteristics are virtually identical," said Tom Logan, chief of wildlife research for the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. "Two or three hundred years ago genetic material was commonly exchanged throughout the species across North America, because all populations were connected in some manner."

However, Logan, who is chairman of the subcommittee, said the Florida population became geographically isolated from western populations as mountain lions died out in the eastern United States.

Not only were they genetically isolated; in-bredding began in the smaller population, causing genetic variation to decline. Health problems such as heart defects and reproductive disorders increased. These factors, in conjunction with habitat loss, have been the primary mechanisms driving the Florida panther toward extinction.

Logan told the four-member committee allowing the Texas cats to establish themselves as breeders in the Florida population would begin to restore the historic genetic health of the Florida subspecies and greatly improve its recovery as an endangered population.

Logan also said habitat protection remains just as important to the subspecies' recovery. The technical subcommittee will now assist the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in preparing an environmental assessment that will be available for public review before field work begins in January 1994.

The committee also approved redesign of a shorter-term captive breeding program and discontinued capture of any additional Florida panther kittens from the wild until officials decide whether they'll need more kittens under the new plan.

The Florida Panther Interagency Committee consists of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, National Park Service and the former Department of the Environmental Resources. The four agencies have pooled their resources and expertise to save the Florida panther from extinction.

Florida panthers are among the most endangered mammals in the world. Researchers believe fewer than 50 of the tawny cats still exist in the wild; nearly all of them in the Big Cypress National Preserve, Fakahatchee Strand State Preserve, Everglades National Park and other wilderness areas in the southern Florida.
